How to form the Present Perfect

Present Perfect Positive

SUBJECT	HAVE / HAS	PAST PARTICIPLE
I / you / we / they	have	written
he / she / it	has	written

Note: In spoken English, it's common to use the contraction:

- I've written three books.
- We've already seen that movie
- Barbara's forgotten her cell phone.
- He's just woken up.

In this case, he's, she's, Barbara's, etc. mean he has, she has, and Barbara has, not he is, she is, or Barbara is.

Present Perfect Negative

SUBJECT	HAVEN'T / HASN'T	PAST PARTICIPLE
I / you / we / they	haven't	seen
he / she / it	hasn't	seen

Present Perfect Questions

Has	he / she / it	finished?

Examples:

- Has George ever been to New York?

How to answer present perfect questions:

- Have you been to London?

- Has Alex met Miriam yet?
Yes, he has. / No, he hasn't.
- Have the results of the election been announced?
Yes, they have. / No, they haven't.

What is the past participle?

The past participle is a form of the verb that describes a completed action or state.

For regular verbs, the past participle is the same as the simple past:

- I worked (simple past) all day yesterday.
- I've worked (past participle) here since August.

This is also the case for many irregular verbs:

- He sold (simple past) his car last week.
- He's sold (past participle) 200 books so far.

However, some irregular verbs' past participles are different from their simple past form:

- We wrote (simple past) an article for the newspaper.
- We've written (past participle) for many famous publications.

Many of these irregular past participles end in -n:

Infinitive	Simple Past	Past Participle
be	was / were	been
break	broke	broken
choose	chose	chosen
do	did	done
drive	drove	driven
eat	ate	eaten
fall	fell	fallen
fly	flew	flown
forget	forgot	forgotten
give	gave	given
go	went	gone
know	knew	known
see	saw	seen
show	showed	shown
speak	spoke	spoken
steal	stole	stolen
take	took	taken
wear	wore	worn
write	wrote	written

Other irregular past participles have a change in the vowel:

Infinitive	Simple Past	Past Participle
become	became	become
begin	began	begun
come	came	come
drink	drank	drunk
ring	rang	rung
run	ran	run
sing	sang	sung
swim	swam	swum

- Have you ever been to Japan?
- Has she ever seen Titanic?
- Have they ever ridden a motorcycle?
- Has Jason ever failed a test?

Use ever in questions only – NOT in statements.

- ~~“I’ve ever been to Japan.”~~
- “I’ve been to Japan.”

Use never in statements – but only with have/has, not with haven’t/hasn’t:

- ~~“My sister hasn’t never seen Titanic.”~~
- “My sister has never seen Titanic.”
- “My sister hasn’t seen Titanic.”

Present Perfect with already, yet, recently, lately, and just

The words already, yet, recently, lately, and just all refer to a recent and non-specific time. (A specific time would be “yesterday” or “three hours ago” or last Friday,” and in these cases we would use the simple past).

Already and yet

Already can be used in positive statements and questions.

- “I’ve already read today’s newspaper.”
- “Have you already paid the electric bill?”
- “She’s finished the test already.”

Note: Already can go in between “have/has” and the past participle (as in the first two examples) or at the end of the sentence.

Yet can be used in negative statements and questions.

- “We haven’t cleaned the house yet.”
- “Has he told you the good news yet?”
- “Have they booked their tickets yet?”

Note: Yet usually goes at the end of the sentence or phrase.

Recently, lately, and just Recently and lately can be used in positive statements, negative statements, or questions:

Recently

- “He’s recently lost some weight.”
- “I haven’t seen her recently.”
- “Have you spoken to Beth recently?”

Lately

- “I’ve gotten a lot of spam e-mails lately.”
- “Adam and Jessica haven’t been to church lately.”
- “Have you seen any good movies lately?”

Just (usually means very recent) is typically only used in positive statements and questions:

- “Don’t touch the walls – I’ve just painted them and they’re still wet.”
- “What book have you just finished reading?”

American English

In spoken American English, we often use the simple past with already, yet, and just:

- “Did you book the tickets yet?”
- “I already replied to the e-mail.”
- “We just got back from the gym.”

Present Perfect with for/since

The present perfect is also used with for and since to talk about actions that began in the past and continue to the present.

- "I've lived here since 2004."
- "I've lived here for 8 years."

Since is used with a point in time, and means "from that point in time until the present." Use since with dates (2011, January, Tuesday, etc.), times (6:15, noon, this morning, etc.), and past events (I was a child, he graduated from college, etc).

Since is always used with the present perfect, and not the simple past:

- "I've gone to the beach every year since I was a child."
(repeated action that continues until today)
- "I went to the beach when I was a child."
(finished action at a specific time in the past; I don't go to the beach today)

For is used with a time period, and means "for that period of time until the present." Use for with times of any length (five seconds, eight hours, two days, six weeks, nine months, ten years, a decade, centuries, etc.)

Be careful with for, because using the present perfect or the simple past can change the meaning:

- "We've lived in Berlin for 6 months." (and we live in Berlin now)
- "We lived in Berlin for 6 months." (and we don't live in Berlin now)

Present Perfect Simple / Present Perfect Continuous

How to form the present perfect continuous:

Positive and negative statements:

SUBJECT	AUXILIARY VERB	BEEN	-ING FORM
I	have	been	working here since 1992.
He	hasn't	been	sleeping well lately.

Questions:

QUESTION WORD	AUXILIARY VERB	SUBJECT	BEEN	-ING FORM
How long	have	you	been	studying English?
How long	has	she	been	playing tennis?

In some cases, the present perfect simple and the present perfect continuous are the same:

"I've worked here since 1992." = "I've been working here since 1992."

However, we often use the present perfect progressive to emphasize the action, and the present perfect simple to emphasize the result:

- "I've been working on the report for three weeks." (emphasizes the action of working)
- "I've finished the project." (emphasizes that the project is done)
- "We've been cleaning the house all afternoon." (emphasizes the action of cleaning)
- "We've already cleaned the bathroom and the kitchen (emphasizes the fact that the bathroom and kitchen are done)

Be careful: Remember that "state" verbs are never used in continuous form.

- ~~"I've been knowing my best friend since elementary school."~~
- "I've known my best friend since elementary school."
- ~~"She's been understanding everything in the advanced class so far."~~
- "She's understood everything in the advanced class so far."
